
Describes several Gallo-Roman pieces donated to the Musée de Perigueux that were found during the building of a cellar in Aubas. Includes pieces of rock, white marble, granite, and brick and are suggested to be from a chimney of the Middle Ages. Also mentions that a tomb with human bones was discovered in the same cellar.