Journiac

Brief note from the mayor of Journiac that M. Lasserre, during the construction of a barn, found a sarcophagus with human remains approximately 100 meters outside the village. M. de Fayolle believes it dates from the 12th century.

Savignac-de-Miremont

Reproduction of an article by M. Capitan concerning discoveries made in the Dordogne during the vacation period. For Savignac-de-Miremont, summarizes the excavations of M. Peyrony undertaken for several years. The cave yielded 5 layers including Acheulean, Mousterian, and Aurignacian. On the 17th of September, a human tibia and femur were discovered. Additional excavation uncovered a skeleton with Lower Mousterian type artifacts.