1. Purpose – This page provides information on significant faculty achievements. Implementing the recommendations of the Provost's Council on Science and Technology, departments were requested to provide "truly significant awards (Nobel Prize, Fields Medal, Turing Award etc.)," "truly significant, high impact results," and "truly significant leadership positions in academia and government." No high impact results were reported. On the page, fellows are reported as a separate category because some departments reported them as awards and some as leadership positions. Departments were requested to identify the achievements as "prestigious" or "highly prestigious." No general criteria for those categories were provided. The years listed on this page reflect the year that each item was reported. Faculty achievement data is provided by the initial science departments. This data is updated annually in the fall.

2. Fact Amounts –

3. Examples –

4. User Notes – Please note that a few awards are missing the recipient's name. This results from the departmental data submission and can be corrected in the next update.

5. Additional Reports –