"Federal Facts by Plan Reporting School" report:

- The analysis shows, for each Plan Reporting School, the following federal amounts:
  - Federal Year Cost of Attendance (COA) - as dictated by Congress, the COA is the average cost to attend for one academic year (fall through spring). It includes tuition and fees, books and supplies, room and board, transportation, and personal expenses. Colleges adjust the COA yearly to reflect changes to these costs.
  - Federal Unmet Cost of Attendance - is calculated by taking the COA and subtracting the financial aid.
  - Financial Need = Cost of Attending NYU - Expected Family Contribution
    - Federal Need - New York University, like all colleges and universities, bases its federal "financial need" analysis on the federally mandated formula called the "federal need analysis methodology," or Expected Family Contribution (EFC). In summary, the EFC (and the results of the CSS/Financial Aid PROFILE, if required) provides a tool to estimate the amount the student and the student's family are expected to contribute (family contribution) toward the education. It includes factors such as taxable and nontaxable income, assets (savings, etc.), benefits (for example, income from Social Security or unemployment insurance), and the number of family members in college. The amount calculated is subtracted from the cost of attending New York University, yielding the student's financial need.
  - Federal Unmet Need = Financial Need - Financial Aid Awarded
  - Federal Expected Family Contribution - the Expected Family Contribution (EFC) is a measure of the student's family financial strength and is calculated according to a formula established by law. The student's family taxed and untaxed income, assets, and benefits (such as unemployment or Social Security) are all considered in the formula.
  - Federal Total Aid - it includes outside assistance and cannot exceed the cost of attendance.
  - Total Accepted Award - total accepted award by student.
